WOMEN MAKING WAVES

— est 2019 —

Women Making Waves was born in 2019, when the CEO of the Morro Bay Chamber, Erika Crawford, had a vision to interact and highlight women making a difference in the world. When Tyler Skinner expressed excitement about this project and a willingness to bring the event into fruition, she became the CEO of Women Making Waves.

With COVID-19, Women Making Waves has shifted their events to a virtual setting, which has enabled significant growth and diversification. Women Making Waves now brings in panelists to speak all across the nation, which has been amazing to hear about all the women doing cool things in the world.

Most of the event attendees are women from all around the nation, mainly SLO though, ranging in ages from 20-60 years old. Women Making Wave's target market includes middle aged women who are either working or stay-at-home mothers who want to connect with other women and be able to feel like they are a part of something bigger.
